

2018 FCAME Mortuary Price Survey

This survey of funeral establishments in Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia was conducted during 2018 by the Funeral Consumers Alliance of Maryland and Environs (FCAME). The prices quoted for each funeral establishment were taken from its General Price List (GPL) or from telephone calls to establishments that did not respond to our request for their GPLs. It should be noted that these prices are subject to revision at any time and may have changed since our information was obtained. The prices quoted are for the least expensive options: for direct cremation and immediate burial. Although many consumers may not opt for these specific services, comparison of these most basic options provides some information about the relative cost-efficiency of funeral service providers in a given geographic area.

Inclusion in this survey does not constitute any endorsement by the FCAME. Establishments not listed did not provide us with information about their prices.

The prices given for direct cremation are the least expensive option for direct cremation and DO NOT INCLUDE a cremation container (in most cases) or an urn. They generally DO include the crematory fee to the best of our knowledge unless otherwise noted below. See the notes after the data table for more specific information about what direct cremation typically entails.

The prices given for immediate burial are the least expensive option and DO NOT INCLUDE caskets, vaults, burial plots, costs associated with opening and closing a grave, monuments, or services of any kind, except as noted. See the notes after the data table for more specific information about what immediate burial typically entails.

The footnotes that appear in the data table below are explained immediately beneath it.

(10) This funeral establishment posts its prices on its website. (NOTE: Other establishments may also post prices on their websites – this notation just refers to those we happen to know do. More may be adding this information as time goes on so it's a good idea to check the websites of the establishments you are interested in.)

Direct Cremation - more details

The price quoted in this survey is the price listed on the General Price List (GPL) of a funeral establishment as “direct cremation with container provided by purchaser” (unless noted otherwise) meaning it does not include the container in which the body is cremated. This is the base price, to which the cost of any cremation container, whether it is purchased elsewhere or from the funeral establishment, must be added.

Unless otherwise stated, the direct cremation price quoted typically includes:

- transportation (within a reasonable distance) of the deceased to the mortuary and to the crematory;
- the costs (basic services) of the funeral director and staff;
- securing of all necessary permits and authorizations (except as noted below);
- the crematory fee; and
- return of the cremated remains to the family in a simple, temporary container either by mail or by having the family pick them up at the funeral establishment.

It does not include the use of facilities for viewing, either at the funeral home or at the crematory. It usually does not include the medical examiner’s fee for approval of cremation if the death occurs in DC, and the courier’s fee for obtaining it, particularly if the mortuary is located outside of DC. There is also a medical examiner’s fee for direct cremation when the death occurs in MD.

Some establishments do not include the crematory fee in their charge for a direct cremation. When this is the case and we were able to find out what that fee is, we included it in the price we quoted above. If the GPL states the crematory fee is not included but we were not able to determine that cost, we noted that with a footnote. If we were not able to determine whether it was included or not, we also noted that with a footnote. Crematory fees vary from approximately $175 to more than $600 in our area. They may be higher if the body weighs more than 300 pounds.

Cremation containers (the container that the body is cremated in) can cost as much as $3900. However, funeral establishments are required to offer a relatively inexpensive “alternative container” for cremation. The least expensive one offered by any given establishment varies from a simple cardboard box or canvas or vinyl pouch offered for as little as $15, to a more elaborate one costing as much as $690. If an establishment does not offer one of the simplest, least expensive containers for cremation, you could purchase one elsewhere and use it if you prefer, if it conforms to the requirements of the crematory. In general, the establishments that charge higher prices for direct cremation are less likely to offer the least expensive types of cremation containers but might be willing to do so if asked. It pays to call and find out. An urn to store the cremated ashes (cremains) might add $45 to more than $4,250 to the overall cost.

Immediate Burial

The price quoted is the price listed on the GPL as “immediate burial with casket provided by purchaser.” This is the base price, to which the cost of a casket, whether it is purchased elsewhere or from the funeral establishment, must be added.

Unless otherwise noted, the price listed for immediate burial includes:

- transfer of the deceased from the place of death to the mortuary and to the place of burial;
- the costs (basic services) of the funeral director and staff;
- securing of the necessary authorizations and permits; and
- minimal preparation of the body for purposes of identification only.

It does not include:

- embalming (which costs from $300 to more than $2000 and is usually not required by law although a funeral establishment may require it for visitations or viewings using its facilities);
- the cost of a cemetery plot, opening and closing the grave, a liner or vault, or any marker or monument.

It typically does not include any ceremony, visitation, or viewing. A few funeral homes may be willing to include a simple graveside service for a few family members with or without clergy (which otherwise might cost between $250 - $700 in addition to cemetery fees). We have noted this in a footnote when it was stated in the GPL or we happened to glean that information in a phone conversation, and there might be others willing to provide such a service if asked. But other funeral establishments state in their GPL that they provide transportation and burial at the convenience of the funeral home instead of at the convenience of the family, when immediate burial is chosen.

The price quoted typically includes little or no preparation of the body, and there are typically additional charges for washing, dressing and further preparation if desired. Some establishments simply wrap the body in a sheet for immediate burial. If the body is not embalmed, some funeral homes require the use of a body pouch at an additional cost. There may be other charges not explicitly mentioned in the GPL as being included or excluded.

The minimum casket offered by a funeral home is most often cloth-covered wood or fiberboard, costing between $500 and $850. But some offer a plain pine box for as little as $400 and others offer nothing less than a steel casket costing more than $1000. Most caskets are priced between $1500 and $8000, but they may range in price up to more than $100,000, as listed in one casket price list we reviewed. Details on casket prices are usually not found on the GPL itself but in a separate casket price list. The Federal Trade Commission's Funeral Rule requires funeral establishments to offer a prospective purchaser the casket price list as soon as caskets or alternative containers are discussed, before the caskets are actually shown. Families are free to purchase a casket elsewhere. Funeral providers are forbidden by the Funeral Rule to charge more for their services if a casket purchased elsewhere is used. Some funeral homes are willing to provide a less expensive casket than is listed on their GPLs when requested to do so. It pays to call and find out. Most cemeteries require a vault because it makes cemetery maintenance easier. Vaults range typically in price from $595 to $4000, but they may cost more than $25,000.

Additional Considerations

Although the prices quoted here do not include ceremonies, viewings, or visitations, nor items such as cremation containers, urns, caskets, or other burial merchandise, there remains some variation among funeral establishments in what is provided for either direct cremation or immediate burial. You should call and find out the specific details for any establishments you are interested in comparing. Some variation in price can be attributed to overhead for buildings, staff, and various amenities that may be valued by some purchasers, but perhaps not by those looking for simpler, more cost-effective arrangements.

You should also be aware that these prices do not include discretionary items such as multiple certified copies of death certificates. Multiple death certificates are generally required to manage the estate of the deceased. These prices also do not cover obituaries, flowers, cards, or limousines. They do not include transportation over long distances, which generally is charged on a per-mile basis beyond the local area. There may be extra charges if a separate trip must be made to obtain a death certificate. Many funeral establishments will hold a body for only a short period –as little as 6 to 24 hours – before adding charges for sheltering or refrigeration, which may run between $75 and $150 per day. Often such charges will be incurred if the body must be held over a weekend or holiday. There may be additional charges for services provided on Saturday or Sunday or late in the day. There may also be additional charges for cremation or burial if the body weighs over 300 pounds.

Most funeral establishments have a website. We have included the web address in our survey when it was provided to us but if one is not listed for a given establishment you may be able to find it with an internet search. Many have photos of their establishments and staff and a few have extensive information including complete price lists and pictures of merchandise such as caskets, vaults, and urns. We have noted this when we have knowledge of that fact but were unable to verify this status for all establishments listed, and as time passes more may do this, so check to see if it is the case for establishments you may be interested in. We recommend you visit the websites of any establishments you are considering prior to visiting the actual physical facility.

Muslim and Jewish individuals should check with a spiritual leader where you worship to see if there are funeral establishments or cemeteries that have special arrangements to serve your respective spiritual community. For example, the Jewish Funeral Practices Committee of Greater Washington contracts with local funeral homes to provide immediate burial including a plain pine box for burial, and use of facilities for members of the committee to perform ritual Jewish preparation of and sitting with the body. It is available to members of the more than 40 synagogues that currently participate. More information can be found at www.jewish-funerals.org.
